

Emerging Leaders Engagement Network (ELEN)

The ELEN is an interdisciplinary, career-orientated mentorship program for rural new graduates, interns, and early career health professionals working in rural health. The program is an initiative by the Going Rural Health.

ELEN selects and matches novice rural practitioners with mentors experienced and accomplished in their rural health careers, to enable those new to the rural context to plan their progression, and gain insight into how to build a successful rural health career.

The ELEN program is currently recruiting for volunteer mentors to impart their knowledge and guidance to the next generation!

If you believe you have what it takes to guide an emerging leader in establishing their rural health career Going Rural Health invites you to volunteer today!

Mitchell Dunn
Program Coordinator

* All prospective mentors receive free mentorship training, and ongoing support from the Going Rural Health team.

For more information, or to register please contact the program coordinator Mitchell Dunn:
mitchell.dunn@unimelb.edu.au
or call 0437715327

